FIFTY-SECOND DAY OF THE SLICKENS CASE IN COURT.

Continuation of the Argument Before Judge Temple-The Theory of the Defense Clearly Set Forth

The argument in the case of the People vs. The Gold Run Mining and Ditch Company was resumed before Judge Temple at 9:30

A. M., yesterday, Mr. Wilson for the detend. ant continuing his remarks, a synopsis of To denude the land of its treasure, and that ant continuing his remarks, a synopsis of which is given:

We have now reached the period when, in California (April 13, 1850), the common law includes both principles, rules and usages for the protection of the person and property that does not rest upon express declaration of statute, etc. (Kent's Commentaries.) The adoption of the common law here was only an adoption of so much of it as was adapted to our circumstances and condition, and in other respects it was modified by statutes of other respects it was modified by statutes of the nation and State. Bouvier says the comnon law in the United States is not the same always, as in England. It is here only such is adapted to our conditions, etc. In 8 etc.) So the common law, as adopted here in 1850, did not repeal the custems and usages that prevailed, for the conditions out of which they *prang continued. So, too, the Courts and Legislatures recognized, after 1850, the customs and usages concerning mining, water use, etc., that prevailed prior to 1850. The Supreme Court has held that these customs embraced general usages, that were not put into local or district regulations. But (9 Wheaton, 585,) it has been recognized that embraced general usages, that were not put into local or district regulations. But (9) Wheaton, 585,) it has been recognized that custom and usage modify the common law little for the confirmed is bound by the same principle. It is the inexorable logic that follows the doctrines laid down by the Supreme Court of the United States. There itself. So the adoption of the common law did not change the customs and usages concerning mining; that is, we have had a California common law on that subject, that grew up with the early settlement of the State. In Massachusetts it has been held that usages with the considerable number are injured. So we make the private, but not a public nuisance, except a considerable number are injured. So we advance beyond them and to higher planes of the neculiar conditions presented the control of the common law did not change the customs and usages concerning the lands injured are of Mexican and usages. There is no evidence here that any of the lands injured are of Mexican are not to be taken as axioms. We considerable number are injured. So we advance beyond them and to higher planes of thought and knowledge. Justice Earle (2) Massachusettes of the peculiar conditions pregrowing out of the peculiar conditions prevailing in Massachusetts in early days, grew into the force of law, and sprang from unwritten customs, etc. (13 Metcalf), and became the common law of Massachusetts. So have we have a California common law, that have out, might have out, might nave out, might nave out, might nave out, and one could not complain that this was a public nuisance. In 19 Cal., yet 269, and cases cited, it is said all grants had to be presented to the Land Commission, or else the lands were treated as public lands.

tha here we have a California common law, that grew up with the State, and out of its early condition. There is a distinction between the unwritten and the written district laws, to be presented to the hand obtained as the lands were treated as public lands. It is not shown here that the lands injured are Mexican grants, and therefore they are to be treated as being public lands. The nized them without any specific recognition by the Legislature, and that body likewise recognized them without specific expression affirmatively (8 Cal., 334). There the Su-affirmatively (8 Cal., 334). There the Su-affirmatively determined and recognized to their use, the use of the water, and sented to their use, the use of the water, and sented to their use, the use of the water, and sented to their use, the use of the water, and sented to their use, the use of the water, and sented to their use, the use of the water, and sented to their use, the use of the water, and sented to their use, the use of the water, and sented to their use, the use of the water, and sented to their use. preme Court expressly determined and recognered to their use, the use of the water, and in 5 Selden, 445, the Court said the maxim is all things necessary to the rights granted, and in 5 Selden, 445, the Court said the maxim is iterated and reiterated in the books, and yet tity and quality. That decision was made in are equally bound. THE SACRAMENTO RIVER. n 1858, it was again held by the Court that The General Government has recognized RIGHT TO APPROPRIATE WATER the effect of mining on the Sacramento river Has been too long recognized to be doubted. and consented to it. (95 U. S., 454 f 3 Wal., 713; 6 Wal., 35;; 2 Peters, 245; 9 Wheat., 1) In 1866 Congress recognized these water The Legislature of the State, it was said, gave general license to take and use the water, and has recognized the right as a fran-chise or leasement. So, too, in 6 Cal. (1856), the Court took judicial notice of the condition rights, with full knowledge of the flood of 1862. The General Government controls the streams of the State, and the State can only of the State and of the early history, and of act where the General Government is silent, the customs and rights growing therefrom as to mining and as to the use of water, etc. The to mining and as to the use of water, etc. The Government has looked on quietly on these appropriations, and encouraged them But the State Government has not interfered of all the important streams by them, and these have been referred to by the Legislature and consented to, and made a source of revenue to the State. Appropriation of water and diversion, in opposition to the common law, thus grew to be the common law of California, and carried with it and expressly in some cases. So in the construc-tion of flumes and ditches, and the tapping common law, thus grew to be the common law of California, and carried with it and authorized all the necessary things and acts to the successful carrying on of mining. In 7 Cal., 325, the subject is discussed, and the Court comments on the joint action of the State and Federal Governments in the State, just as it does to the individual, in or out of Court. It stands on the same broad platform, as a suitor in Court, as does any citizer, and is subject to the same trecognized, and under which rights had become vested which the Government must become vested which the Government must recognize or else violate all the principles complain now, however much she should fave the compact river bed and day out the banks, and had to go often becompact or else violate all the principles as a principle of estoppel applies to the State, just as it does to the individual, in or out of Court. It stands on the same broad platform, as a suitor in Court, as does any citizer, and is subject to the same rules. They show how the mouth dug out the banks, and had to go often becompact river bed was broken up by a done so long age. So all the legislation of Congress as to mining was based on of the railroad grants, and these rights had grown up prior to 1866. So out of the Cali-

THE USE OF WATER, Yielding for the time to the State to set up a system for their government, rules for working mines, their drainage and other working mines, their drainage and other means necessary to the complete development of the mines. Congress could not have been more explicit on the subject. Now, it follows that customs and usages have become a part of the common law of the State; that such customs and usages have long prevailed, have been recognized by the State and by the Federal Government; and lastly, that out of them have grown equitable obligations that eral Government so recognized it, as did the Supreme Court over and over again, and such was the understanding of the people, and that is why this thing has grown up as it has. But it is not necessary to hold that mining is now the paramount interest; that is not necessary to the defendant's case. The paramount feeling of the early days had its influence on the legislation of the State [many the pre-existing rights, and was only intended to more fully carry out the force of the same. Congress never obliged No particular terms are necessary to con-

To become the owner of the land, but gave license to enter on the lands and work for minerals. So in 3 Wallace, 104, Chief Justice Chase commented on these principles and affirmed them. So in 20 Wallace, 510, the same Court, by Judge Field, said, as to the use of water for mining purposes, the common law was found early to be inapplicable to the aspect, recognized that there could be no mining without water. It was ituation, either as to the use of the water or ient things also. The prior grantee of the Government (prior to Act of 1866) is equally bound with the Government by the grant of

THE SUBSTRATUM AND BASIS as to the rights of riparian owners. In 20 Wallace the same propositions are reffirmed. Of all mining, and the whole action of the State and Federal Governments was on the When in 1866 Congress came to legislate on the subject, it found the decisions of the basis of the use of water in mining. That mining is a public use, and the appropriation Courts holding these men had vested rights, of the streams is made to that use, no doubt can exist. 1 Federal Reports, 145, is in fendant no credit, but charge the whole conand that the conscience of the Government was bound, and it was recognized that it had incurred obligations it must sustain and fulpoint, and a striking case. grown up prior to 1866. So out of the California system rights against the Government itself grew up out of the customs of the country. Then it was held that the Act of 1866 was a voluntary recognition of such rights. The Government by that Act expressly ratified the easement of these ditch companies. So. too, the Stat. July, 1870, and May 10, 1872. The case 11 Otto, 275, was expressly approved by the Supreme Court, California (7 Pacific Coast Law Journal, 4716), and it was held that the local customs and usages of the country as to mining and water rights, etc., had been recognized by Congress, and all pre-existing rights thereunder. But this is clearer, for by Section 5, Act 1866, Congress reserved its right to regulate these rights and easements relative to Government, and that if the State dedicates the streams to logging, it had a right to declare that policy, and it alone could change it. The destruction of the navigation of the river was an incident to the grant to collect the logs in booms, hold back the water, and then send it down bearing the rafts of logs, and thus filling the river as against boat navigation. It was the results, the ordinary and necessary results, of the permission granted by the State, and therefore such consequences were contemplated by the State in permitting were contemplated by the State in permitting the use. The use of the streams for carthe use. The use of the streams for carrage of the debris of the mines is a public right that must be maintained so long as there is public need for it; and such is the law that has grown up, and so it must remain, until the law-making power otherwise directs, and the State may so act only where the Federal Government has, by its failure to exercise its legislative power, given consent. Section 5, Act of Congress, 1866, expressly accords to the State the power to regulate mines, ditches and drains, in the abscence of Congressional legislation on the subject. In 27 Wis., 324, the whole subject is again treated. In a Pennsylvania case is again treated. In a Pennsylvania case plaintiffs owned a wharf above the site of a contemplated bridge over the Schuylkill river, and on it commerce had been carried on. In the Blackbird case, so much commented on, a dam was made across a navigable stream by State authority. Chief Justice Marshall held that Congress had not interfered; the State had, therefore, the right to do the act, and that was the end of it, though the people suffered by the closing of the stream. Now, has not the State known of the uses to which the river has been put? Didn't she know the result of cases cited] So far had this opinion and feeling of paramount importance of mining for gold prevailed, that the Legislature restored some of the principles of the Spanish civil law to aid it—as, permitting the miner

But it is said the action of the General Government applied only to the public lands. We'll admit that as to them Congress did consent and act to the full extent in fostering mining, and conferred all these powers, giving the easements over the public lands for hundreds of miles to carry the waters to points not destined by nature. But did it not go farther? Certainly it went so far as to bar complaint by the Government, as to injury to the public lands. It went to the extent of consenting to injury to the General Government, for it saw good to come in the end.

Senator Hoar's speech in opposition to the anti-Chinese bill constitutes a very fair representation of that Eastern sentiment which reflects the last dim adumbrations of Rousseau's spurious humanitarianism. This sentiment has been commonly referred Silver in London, 52d; consols, 100 9-16i; 5 per to as "the fatherhood of God and brother-"hood of Man doctrine," and it may be said to stand to actual human life very much as the ethical precepts of the Gospel stand; that is to say, it is neither sented so eloquently by Senator Hoar is akin to the Christianity which "Compounds for sins it is inclined to By d—g those it has no mind to,"

FIDO AND CHANFICLEER. Unsuccessful Attempt of Ladies to Beat the Railroad.

Yesterday a lady left this city on the morning train for San Francisco. She had a pet poodle she wished to take along, and did not like to put it in the express car and pay the charges therefor. A friend suggested that the success at the bar. Among these gentlemen are to be found as bright and powerful minds, and as high legal ability, as is possible to be compassed by any choice of a like number of lawyers on the coast; indeed, it is doubtful if such a bar as that under notice could be repeated on the Pacific by other success. she put Fido in a small basket, where he would be unobserved, and take him in the graceful advocates of the State. Listening rear with her. She acted upon the sugestion, and doggy was carefully stowed away in a backet and placed upon the seath selicide her. Another lady going on the same train had a pet rooster which she wished to take along, and strange to say, she hit upon the same basket plan. Both ladies were in the same or and occupied seats in the same of the same backet plan. Both ladies were in the same or and occupied seats in the same of the same backet plan. Both ladies were congratulating nicely, and the ladies were congratulating and temperature on how they were beating the country officials, and a fair number of barking on the platform, and commenced dorson the same backet plan. At that point Fido heard some dorson back the plant of the country of the same or the comparison of the platform and commenced dorson the same or the s car with her. She acted upon the suggestion, to him, with rapt attention, was a strong arpets, all to no avail. Fido's barking kept the rooster crowing, and vice versa. When the cars stopped at Dixon those ladies jumped out with algority, could the bark prominent in its modesty; judicial attention without interest exacting ethics of the bar, without cold reserve or mere formality; scholarship that seeks not display; ability must prominent in its modesty; judicial out with alacrity, sought the baggage-master, and gladly paid a good round price to have their musical pets put where they belonged, in the baggage car. But "hydraulic miners are polluting the streams," and the citizens of Sacramento are deprived of their right to clear water. Strange inconsistency of this city of Sacramento; in the very complaint where they make this charge, they set up that they wish to discharge into the river they say we pollute, the filth of their privies and sewers. What are others going to do who have a right to use the water below the city. If I live below it I have a right to drink of the river

THE STATE HAS STOOD SILENT Thirty years, and has seen this work go on ourged these men in their industry, and now she comes with her State demand after having slept so long upon her rights. She is here by virtue of the provisions of the Civil Code of California, and subject to all the provisions thereof. The same Code says right, but to the remedy. And in that re- ances last month foot up $7,457,300, spect the State stands in the same position precisely as does an individual. (7 Cal. 1; 36 Cal., 180; 42 Cal., 413; 26 Cal., 443-4). The right to prosecute involves the burdens and limitations of prosecution.

INJUNCTION In no event should be allowed in this If individuals are injured, let them bring their actions; if the State will act, let her bring her indictments. 19 How. U. S. Reps.; Story's Eq. Juris., Sec. 83; 1 Baldwir, Cir. Ct. Reps.; 47 N. H. Reps.; 12 Nev., 259, 14 Con., and other cases, that injunction is not to be granted where there have been laches or acquiesence, and that the greatest nicety of discretion is to be exercised in granting injunction. Injunctions against lawful business enterprises, charged as nuisances, where there is no malice, will not be granted, but the party be left to law for his remedy [cases cited] nor where a large number of the pub. cited], nor where a large number of the pub-lic is involved. The continuance of this injunction in this case, pending the hearing of the case here and in the Supreme Court, is a severe injury to defendant and no benefit to plaintiff. There is no bond here to secure defendant. The mining has gone on for a long time, and ts suspension now is not demanded by the exiger cles of circumstances. What would be the decree in this case? Defendant has a right to mine; has a right to use water. What else can it be than this: you shall make only a reasonable use of water.
7 Barb., 400; 3 M. & King. In 1 Federal Reports the Court says, as did the Supreme Court of the United States in 95 U.
S. Reps., it is laid down how parties are to be treated who have large conflicting interests. Here are in conflict great communities of the State, under the protection of the law, and it is not meet for the State to say to one, 'Cease your labors." In time the Legislature may devise some mode of meeting this difficulty; indeed, it sought to do so, but its bill was unconstitutional (called the Drainage Act). The Commissioners under that Act, who gave study to the question, reported that Court adjourned until 9:30 A. M. to-day, when Judge Rhodes will speak for the plaintiff.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 21.-A specia neeting was held this afternoon by the Board of Supervisors, to listen to a special message by Mayor Blake on the subject of the Chinese invasion. The Mayor's message was brief and argumentative, yet in its tone fully abreast of public sentiment on this topic. He appreciated the difficulty of presenting new deas on this subject, or of presenting ideas already advanced with more strength and force than they have hitherto been addressed

The Board subsequently adopted resolutions to the effect that the Board fully con-cur in the views expressed by Mayor Blake in his special message on the subject of the Chinese invasion, as to the disastrous and dighting effects of coolie immigration; earnestly petitioning Congress to pass the bill now pending; heartily approving the action of the Senators and Representatives in Congress, in

TO TOP OFF A DINNER, May be Drank Clear, as a Cordial

For a dinner thoroughly appointed, the good old way was to wash down the last triumphs of the feast with copious libations of old Port and Golden Sherry; but "HUB PUNCH" has added a new sensation to the epicure. Its delicacy, aroma, flavor, and delicious, but gentle effects, proclaim it the nectar fit for the gods banqueting on Olympus.

Mix HUB PUNCH with Ice Water, Cold Tea, Lemonade, or Soda. It is unanimously pronounced unrivalled. TESTIMONIALS.
